AMUSEMENT NOTES

Mrs. Wiggs of The Cabbage Patch at Opera House Tonight.

"De-light-ed," cried President Roosevelt when in Louisville he was shown the veritable "cabbage patch" wherein Mrs. Alice Hogan Rice found Mrs. Wiggs and Lovey Mary. And then the chief executive went on to say that he regarded Mrs. Wiggs' life quite as highly as the simple life preached by his friends the Rev. Charles Wagner. Presidential praise is high praise always, and in his speech delivered before the students of the state agricultural college, at Lansing, Mich., on May 31st, 1907, he said: "You will learn the root principles of self-help and helpfulness toward others from 'Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch,' just as much as from any formal treatise on charity," which shows that the executive is thoroughly in accord with the American people who love Mrs. Wiggs as they have loved few other women of literature and the stage. "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" will be the attraction at the opera house this evening.

"Pierre of the Plains."

Henry B. Harris, one of America's foremost producers and under whose direction Edgar Selwyn is to appear at the opera house on Wednesday, October 7th, in "Pierre of the Plains," has so far this season launched on a successful career for stars and eight productions—Robert Edson now appearing in the Hudson theatre, New York, in the

A FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. & Mrs. John Lawrence of Enosburg Falls

OBSERVED EVENT TO-DAY

Mr. Lawrence Has Had an Adventurous Career, One of Events Being Trip to California as One of the Forty-niners.

Enosburg Falls, Oct. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home in this place today. Nearly all their relatives living near-by took dinner with them.

Mr. Lawrence was born in this town November 23, 1839. At an early age he went to Boston, where he was employed as a coach driver before the advent of horse cars. He returned home and was one of the California Forty-Niners, making the trip by water to Panama, thence, also by water, to San Francisco. He returned home in 1853, and October 5, 1858, married Eliza Maria Woodworth, of Berkshire, the Rev. F. C. Kimball, a Methodist clergyman, performing the ceremony—each took place here.

Mrs. Lawrence was born February 6, 1838, in Berkshire. After the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence they lived on a farm in North Enosburg for a year after which they moved to this place where Mr. Lawrence purchased a half interest in the sawmill owned by George Sprague. Later he bought the other half interest of Mr. Sprague and continued in the business until the mill was washed away by the high water in April, 1896, when hundreds of dollars worth of property in this and adjoining towns was washed away or damaged.

Five children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, Mrs. D. M. Gardner of this place, Dwight H. Lawrence, who died in Chicago at the age of nineteen years, Irving A. Lawrence of Lowell, Mass., Earl Lawrence of Newport, and Miss Chastina B. Lawrence of this place. They also have four grandchildren and one great-grandchild. All were present at the celebration today but one son, Irving A., and two of the grandchildren.

Mr. Lawrence's parents lived to observe their seventieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. Lawrence has been a member of the Masonic fraternity in this place for many years.

RANDOLPH

Death of O. H. Barber on Sunday Afternoon From Pneumonia.

The death of O. H. Barber occurred at his home near Randolph Center on Sunday at two o'clock in the afternoon after an illness of two days with pneumonia. Mr. and Mrs. Barber came from Hinesburg one year ago and purchased what was known as the Carpen farm. Soon after their arrival and settlement here Mr. Barber became a member of Phoenix lodge, F. and A. M., and later Mr. and Mrs. Barber affiliated with Beulah Chapter, Order of Eastern Stars, where they at once found friends who will sincerely regret his death. Deceased was 60 years of age, and is survived by a wife and two children, one daughter who is matron of Heaton hospital, Montpelier, who has been with him during his illness and a son who with his family live in Glen Falls, N. Y.

Mrs. Samuel Bonum has had the misfortune to break her arm. Dr. F. C. Angell attends the case.

Misses Carrie and Ivy Manchester have returned from a stay of a week in Brattleboro with friends.

Mr. Ernest Packard of Worcester, Mass., is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Packard of this place.

W. R. Sargent and family have arrived from Castleton and are moving into the Baptist parsonage on Summer street.

Mrs. George Hull from Brookfield and Mrs. H. Burton Tenney of Barre are guests of their sister, Mrs. Leslie Russell, for a few days.

Mrs. J. P. Cleveland left here Saturday for Boston, where she will spend several weeks with her daughter, Miss Ida Flint, of that city.

Mrs. Alice Thurston returned to her home in Northfield Saturday after passing two weeks with her father in town, Charles Thurston.

W. H. Gladding and wife returned from St. Albans Saturday morning, having attended the state Universalist convention in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Drow went to Woodstock Saturday to spend a few days with Mr. Drow's brother, George, who has employment at the inn.

The football team from Randolph high school went to Bethel on Saturday to play with the Whitecomb high the game resulting in a victory for the latter, the score being 10 to 0.

Mrs. Oscar Colburn was operated upon for the removal of a tumor at the sanatorium on Saturday from which she rallied on Saturday and was comfortable in an hour this morning.

Leslie Russell, the efficient clerk in the store of E. W. Tewksbury, was taken suddenly ill Thursday and on Friday night it was considered necessary to take him to the sanatorium for an operation for appendicitis. Dr. C. J. Kimball, his brother, Dr. Angell and Dr. Scott performed the operation on Saturday, from which the patient rallied safely and at present is considered as comfortable as could be expected.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the Civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done us worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." J. Drury's store, or if unable to bring them please notify the committee. Committee on plans, Mrs. A. E. House and Carrie Lougee; committee on vegetables, Ed. Adams, Frank Jeffords and Henry Griffin.

Wear Satin This Winter.

"Indeed, it is to be a satin season," says Grace Margaret Gould in October Woman's Home Companion. "Not the satin of our grandmothers, so stiff and heavy, but a light, soft, supple material with a wonderful lustre of its own, which adapts itself marvelously to the new clinging type of gown."

"Paris is wild with enthusiasm over the satin gilet. A gilet, you know, is a little vest. One of the smartest of these imported small garments, and one, which American women are sure to like, is made of black satin bands shaped to the figure and each finished in a point. This gilet is single breasted and buttons in the front. Combined with the satin is a band of erian embroidery forming the top. This is a peculiarly French touch and is sure to be much the vogue. The contrast of the beautiful Parisian colors with the shining black satin is most effective and one of those little things which the French make so important. Such a vest as this will prove most serviceable to the women with a limited wardrobe. It will give a new look to a last year's suit, and an attractive look, too."

"A vest of this sort is generally worn with a cutaway coat, but I suggest that it be made so that it can take the place of an overblouse and be worn with a guimpe of filet net."

CURRENT COMMENT.

"Railroadin'."

The Central Vermont is replacing the rails on the main line with new and heavier ones and those taken up are being laid on the branches. There has been no blare of trumpets over this. The new management of the Central is not in politics but is running the road as a business proposition, pure and simple—Burlington Clipper.

A Lecture to the Courts.

Mildred Brewster has been returned to the state hospital for the insane at Waterbury, after being given her liberty for a few months by the court. Some well meaning friends of the unfortunate woman applied for her release, promising to care for her. Dr. Groat, superintendent of the hospital, opposed the application, stating in effect that he did not consider it wise for this woman to be at liberty. He knew the condition of Miss Brewster better than anyone else could possibly understand it. The court, however, listened to the plea of her friends and granted her release. Now, after a few months, those friends find the same stubborn disposition and tendencies which finally resulted in the killing of a girl friend because of jealousy ten years ago, and they are very glad to be relieved of the responsibility of caring for her longer. It was a case of mistaken sympathy the outcome being exactly as Superintendent Groat expected. This experience will undoubtedly suggest to the courts in future cases of this kind that it is wiser to listen to those whose business it is to know the condition of patients rather than to the plea of sympathetic friends.—Northfield News.

The Independence Party.

The Bennington Banner seems to think that the Independence party in Vermont has a future. It says:

"According to the revised figures of the secretary of state the Independence ticket for governor received one per cent. of the vote and the followers of Hearst in Vermont thus reach the distinction of being a legally recognized party and will hereafter not be required to file nomination papers for presidential electors. The Independence movement has probably made as little progress in Vermont as in any state in the union, the existing conditions furnishing less opportunity for the propagation of the ideas and principles of the movement. The present high priest had not been at all surprising to see that little one per cent. form the nucleus or what in the not far distant future will be a party that will have to be reckoned with by other political organizations. It would be even less surprising to see the greatest growth of the Independence movement take place after the present high priest had crossed the great divide."

We see nothing whatever in the political history of Vermont to justify any such theory as that of the Banner's. In the past fifty years how many parties have risen and fallen, so meagre formidable than this Independence movement—Vermont all the while voting the Republican ticket.

As to the "present high priest" of the Independence party, we suppose the Banner refers to Mr. Hearst. As matter of fact, Mr. Hearst is all there is of the party, nationally speaking, and if he were to drop it its lease of life would be short indeed.—Burlington News.

Husbands and Wives.

When Jennie was wedded to Will, said she:

"A dutiful wife I mean to be; His every thought, his every care, His every sorrow, I hope to share. No thought shall William entertain That is not known to his loving Jane. His sport shall be my sport and he Shall never want any one else but me."

Now Will had no thought in the world but one—

To kill and slay with his deadly gun; He tramped the stubbles, he tramped the heather, Ruthlessly slaughtering fur and feather.

So Jennie, though little addicted to sport,

Like a dutiful wife had her skirts cut short,

And all day long over bolt and mill Wearily toiled at the heels of Will.

Rain and sun and sun and rain Best on the face of the dutiful Jane Till her skin grew leathery coarse and black.

Her coat hung down like a shapeless sack,

Her hands were knotted, her fingers twisted

And her feet the hugest that ever existed.

With aching limbs she trudges still Wearily, wearily after Will,

While he, depressed by the terrible blight of her

Shoulders whenever he catches a sight of her.

When Kitty was wedded to Tom, said she:

"A spoilt little wife I mean to be; I don't care a rap what the world may say, I mean to make shure of my own sweet way.

And instead of my slaving for Tom I'll That he is the veriest slave to me."

Scarcely had the wedding bell chimed grown faint

When Kitty contracted a new complaint A sort of a kind of a curious feeling That seemed to defy all hopes of healing.

It baffled the doctors' diagnosis And called for sofas and restful poses, What it might be no man could say; It came and went in a curious way.

If dinners and dances were on the tapis Kitty grew suddenly well and happy, But if household cares began to worry Kitty relapsed in the greatest hurry.

Sunk on a sofa and closed her eyes And wrung Tom's heart with her deep-drawn sighs.

At first Tom sometimes felt a wish To gallop or golf or shoot or fish.

But if he indulged such a selfish whim Kitty was sure to be even with him.

For when he returned he would find her lying

Stretched on the sofa and all but dying, Doled in a peignoir that fitted natively, Crying for brandy and sal volatile.

So it continued for several days Till Tom was wearied from his wicked ways.

And now in his holidays he is tied To his darling Kitty's sofa side

Feeding her up with chicken and jelly And reading aloud from Miss Corelli.—Punch.
